

COVID-19 Protocol for Exempt Travelers

Under the authority of the Chief Medical Officer of Health

1.0 Introduction

Nova Scotia's Public Health Order is issued by the Chief Medical Officer of Health under the authority of the Health Protection Act. Under the Public Health Order, people who enter from outside Atlantic Canada must self-isolate for 14 days upon arrival in Nova Scotia unless they have an exemption.

Exemptions from this requirement in the Public Health Order are for people in certain jobs and situations, as long as they do not have symptoms of COVID-19. While they are exempt from 14 days of self-isolation, people with exemptions must still meet certain requirements outlined in this travel protocol (effective April 7, 2021) to help prevent the spread of COVID-19.

The requirements in Section 3 of this travel protocol apply to people in the following jobs and situations who are exempt from 14 days of self-isolation when they arrive in Nova Scotia for a specific purpose as outlined in the Public Health Order:

- People engaged in a legal proceeding in Nova Scotia
- People traveling for essential health services and their accompanying support people
- Certain workers who must enter Nova Scotia to carry out their work duties or training required for their jobs:
 - workers in the trade and transportation sector who are employed in the movement of goods and people across the Nova Scotia border by land, air, or water, including truck drivers, crew, maintenance and operational workers on any plane, train or ship
 - Canadian Military and Defence Team personnel, Coast Guard, RCMP, Canadian Border Services Agency, and Canadian Security Intelligence Service
 - first responders, including police, fire and EHS paramedic workers

In addition to the requirements outlined in Section 3 of this protocol, everyone must also follow all the public health measures in place in Nova Scotia.

NOTE: If any of these people are traveling for personal reasons (such as vacation or visiting), they are not exempt and must self-isolate for 14 days upon arrival in Nova Scotia. In addition, if an exempt person or a member of their household chooses to travel for personal reasons that are not considered essential, their entire household (including the exempt person) must self-isolate, unless there is a completely separate living space with a bathroom where the traveler can self-isolate alone.

2.0 Exemptions not covered by this travel protocol

2.1 Child custody exemption and protocol

The Public Health Order includes an exemption related to travel for the purpose of carrying out child custody agreements. They are not covered by this travel protocol. They follow the COVID-19 Protocol for Child Custody Travel.

2.3 Non-exempt workers

There is specific self-isolation direction for other types of workers when they are in Nova Scotia. None of the following workers are covered by this travel protocol:

- Rotational workers (as defined in the rotational worker directive) must follow a modified form of self-isolation for 14 days when they return to Nova Scotia. Their isolation and testing requirements are outlined in the rotational worker directive and include completing the Nova Scotia Safe Check-in form.
- Specialized workers (as defined in the specialized worker directive) must isolate when they are not at their worksite in Nova Scotia. Their isolation and testing requirements are outlined in the specialized worker directive and include completing the Nova Scotia Safe Check-in form.
- Fish harvesters (as defined in the COVID-19 Fish Harvester Protocol) must isolate when they are not at their worksite in Nova Scotia. Their isolation requirements are outlined in the specialized worker directive and include completing the Nova Scotia Safe Check-in form.
- Temporary foreign workers must self-isolate for 14 days upon arrival in Canada and get tested under the federal Quarantine Act. They are allowed to complete this isolation and testing in Nova Scotia. Isolation plans for these workers have been developed by Nova Scotia employers. These workers must complete the Nova Scotia Safe Check-in form and follow the COVID-19 Protocol for Temporary Foreign Workers.
- Healthcare workers are not exempt from self-isolation under the Public Health Order. They must complete the Nova Scotia Safe Check-in form. If healthcare workers employed by the Nova Scotia Health Authority or the IWK Health Centre need to travel for work, they must seek direction from their Occupational Health unit.

2.4 Traveling to Nova Scotia from outside Atlantic Canada

Permanent residents of Atlantic Canada are exempt from the 14-day self-isolation requirement when they travel to Nova Scotia. The same is true for permanent residents of Nova Scotia who return to this province after having traveled within Atlantic Canada.

People from outside Atlantic Canada who complete their 14 day-isolation in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island or Newfoundland and Labrador and then travel to Nova Scotia are also exempt from self-isolation in Nova Scotia.

These travelers are not covered by this travel protocol and do not need to complete the Nova Scotia Safe Check-in form.

3.0 Requirements for exempted travelers covered by this protocol

Throughout this section:

- “enter Nova Scotia” means entering from outside Atlantic Canada, and
- “return to Nova Scotia” means returning from outside Atlantic Canada

3.1 Nova Scotia Safe Check-in

When traveling for an exempted activity outlined in the Public Health Order, everyone with the exemptions listed in Section 1.0 above must complete the Nova Scotia Safe Check-in form before entering Nova Scotia. People should complete the form before arriving at the border. Once they complete the form, they will receive a confirmation email which they must show to border officials when they enter the province.

People with exemptions who refuse to complete the online form will lose their exemption. They will be required to self-isolate for 14 days upon arrival in Nova Scotia before they can undertake the exempted activity.

3.2 Symptoms of COVID-19

Do not enter Nova Scotia if you have symptoms of COVID-19. If you have symptoms, stay where you are and follow the process in place in that jurisdiction and arrange assessment.

Anyone who becomes unwell after arriving in Nova Scotia must complete the online assessment, book a COVID-19 test, and follow the isolation directions provided. Even if you only have one mild symptom, you need to get tested. If you can't book the test online, you can call 811.

People who have one mild symptom, other than fever or new or worsening cough, do not have to isolate while waiting for their test and results.

3.3 Legal proceeding

People engaged in a legal proceeding in Nova Scotia (accused, victim, witness, plaintiff, defendant or lawyer) can enter Nova Scotia to participate in the proceeding. They must self-isolate at all times when they are not in court and maintain 2 metres/6 feet physical distance from others. Further, they need to follow the public health measures outlined in section 4 below.

NOTE: This travel protocol does not apply to people who leave Nova Scotia for a legal proceeding. They are not exempt. They must complete 14 days of self-isolation when they return to Nova Scotia.

3.4 Essential health services

People can enter Nova Scotia to access essential health services. Whether a health service is considered essential is determined by the patient's health care provider. These people need to follow the public health measures outlined in section 4 below.

The patient may be accompanied by one or more support people. You should check with the Nova Scotia Health Authority or the IWK Health Centre about their policies for the number of support people allowed. The support people need to follow the public health measures outlined in Section 4 below.

People can also leave Nova Scotia for this purpose without having to self-isolate for 14 days when they return. They need to follow the public health measures outlined in section 4 below.

3.5 Workers involved in movement of goods and people

People can enter Nova Scotia when their trip is work related and involves the movement of goods and people across the Nova Scotia border by land, air, or water. They can also leave Nova Scotia for this purpose and return without having to self-isolate for 14 days. This includes truck drivers and crew, maintenance and operational workers on any plane, train, or ship. When traveling as part of their jobs, these workers need to follow the public health measures outlined in section 4 below.

NOTE: People are not exempt if they live in Nova Scotia but they commute for their work transporting goods or people in another jurisdiction (i.e., they do not transport them into and out of Nova Scotia) or they commute for their work maintaining planes, trains and ships in another jurisdiction. If their schedule fits the criteria of a rotational worker, they have a modified form of self-isolation. If not, they follow the self-isolation direction for essential travel.

3.6 Military, defence and police

Members of the Canadian Military and Defence Team personnel, Coast Guard, RCMP, Canadian Border Services Agency, and Canadian Security Intelligence Service can enter Nova Scotia when necessary to carry out their work duties. They can also leave Nova Scotia for this purpose and return without having to self-isolate for 14 days. When travel is required to carry out their work duties, these people need to follow the public health measures outlined in section 4 below.

In addition to entering Nova Scotia to carry out their duties, current members of these agencies can come to Nova Scotia to house hunt in advance of transferring to a new post in this province. The member, the member's spouse, and their children can look at properties in Nova Scotia but must otherwise self-isolate the entire time they are visiting Nova Scotia for this purpose.

NOTE: The provision for house hunting does not apply to retired members or those who are house hunting because they plan to retire in Nova Scotia. If they come to Nova Scotia to house hunt, they must isolate for 14 days before they can begin looking at properties.

3.7 First responders

First responders, including police, fire and EHS paramedic workers can enter Nova Scotia when necessary to carry out their work duties without having to self-isolate for 14 days. They can also leave Nova Scotia for this purpose and return, also without having to self-isolate for 14 days. When travel is required to carry out their work duties, these people need to follow the public health measures outlined in section 4 below.

NOTE: People are not exempt if they live in Nova Scotia but commute to their first responders work in another jurisdiction. If their schedule fits the criteria of a rotational worker, they have a modified form of self-isolation. If not, they follow the self-isolation direction for essential travel. Also, people who live in Nova Scotia and commute for their job in another jurisdiction cannot serve as first responders during their time off at home until they have completed 14 days of self-isolation.

4.0 Public health measures

Self-isolation for 14 days upon arrival in Nova Scotia is not required for exempted travelers listed in section 1.0 above if the following conditions can be met while they are traveling into Nova Scotia or while they are traveling somewhere outside Atlantic Canada for the purposes of completing an exempted activity:

- Travel directly to the location where the exempted activity takes place
- Only use contactless services (i.e. gas and drive-thrus for food/banking)
- If staying overnight or longer is necessary, they must isolate in their overnight accommodation
- Wear a non-medical mask in any indoor public space other than their overnight accommodation
- Have no close contact with anyone, except as required by the nature of the exempted activity
- Monitor their health closely and if they start to feel sick, self-isolate and get tested

When a person returns to Nova Scotia after completing an exempted activity outside Atlantic Canada, they can go to work or school but for 14 days (or the entire time if they are in Nova Scotia for less than 14 days), they must:

- Minimize close contact with other people.
- Avoid close contact with people at higher risk of developing complications from COVID-19 for 14 days. This includes people with underlying chronic or immunocompromising conditions, seniors, and people living in long-term care facilities or other congregate living settings.

- Avoid non-essential visitors in their home/accommodation.
- Avoid non-essential visits and trips outside their home/accommodation.
- Avoid large gatherings.
- Wear a non-medical mask in any indoor public space or when they are in close contact (less than 2 metres/6 feet) around other people in a private place outside of their home/accommodation.
- Monitor their health closely and if they start to feel sick, self-isolate and book a COVID-19 test or call 811 if they can't book the test online

Testing for COVID-19 is strongly recommended. See details in Section 5 of this document.

5.0 Testing

5.1 Testing when you do not have symptoms

It is strongly recommended that people who are subject to this travel protocol get 3 COVID-19 tests when they return to Nova Scotia. Book the first test on day 1 or 2. If you are still in Nova Scotia, book the second test on day 6, 7 or 8 and the third test on day 12, 13 or 14.

This testing is strongly recommended even if you show no signs of illness. There is no cost for testing.

A negative test result does not give 100% certainty that a person does not have COVID-19. However, testing is an added layer of protection because a negative result is a good indication that the person is not likely carrying and transmitting the virus unknowingly.

5.2 Testing when you have symptoms

Anyone who has symptoms of COVID-19 must complete the online assessment, book a COVID-19 test, and follow the isolation directions provided. Even if you only have one mild symptom, you need to get tested.

People who have one mild symptom, other than fever or new or worsening cough, do not have to isolate while waiting for their test and results.

5.3 How to get tested

Book a COVID-19 test online. If you can't book the test online, you can call 811.

Professional truck drivers can book a test or do a self-administered test. Provincial government is distributing self-test kits to employers so drivers can pick one up before they leave Nova Scotia. When they return, they can stop at the Enfield Big Stop, do the self-test and drop off their sample there. Ask your employer for more information.
